2019ak I tend to avoid OBD2 type plugs just for the fact that they are easy to be bought and rarely tested or even last. If they were to fail i would just need to buy a new plug & not worry about having a spare. aJP anybody using one of these can i ask why. is it only for the $185ccet dwd? aJP anybody using one of these can i ask why. is it only for the $185ccet dwd? Jonbonds I can't speak for everyone but we've been using our JRC DWD's for 1.5 years now and they've been solid. My mechanic has even recommended I replace the plug when the cord starts to flake and lose its capacitance. - Realm Builder Customization

The thought of combining different weapons, armor, and magic is a fantasy piece of art. When you equip a sword with a shield as a set, for example, you can freely change the position of the shield to create a combination that allows you to perform combos. You can freely search for equipment with the settings that you want. It is possible to obtain new equipment that you will find only when you travel the world of Ivory.

Q: How do I remove a specific value from every cell in a column I'm using the below code which loops through each cell in my column. I'd like to remove a specific value (column index 2) from each cell. What's the easiest way to do this?

Sub new() Dim cell As Range For Each cell In Range("A:A") cell.Value = cell.Value Next cell End Sub

A: Use Columns instead of Range. You can use a Range or a Column object, but you cannot use both. When passing a Range to a function, it will return a Range object. But when passing a Column, it will return a Column object. This is important when you call functions on a range (via Range("A:A")), as that will not convert properly if you are trying to use the Range() function. Here is an example of how to do this:

Sub foo() Dim rng As Range Set rng = Range("A:A") 'this is a Range object 'to loop through each cell in the range, use: For Each cell In rng If isEmpty(cell) Then Continue For cell.Value = Replace(cell.Value, "Column-2", vbNullString) Next End Sub

Notes: You do not need to specify the column index to Remove a value, so you can use a column/row range instead of the column indexes provided by Pauls; This could take some time if there are many non empty cells; It would be more efficient if you only needed to replace any instances of a column-2 value with vbNullString, then you would not need a loop. 924 F.2d 1053 Unpublished Disposition
