Robert Lubetkin Robert Lubetkin (born 1934 in Bardia, Libya) is the son of Tovah Lubetkin and the nephew of Kazimierz Lubetkin, both architects. He studied art history at the University of Cologne, Germany and at the Academy of Fine Arts in Vienna. For more than 20 years he taught and lived in the USA, Europe and Eastern Europe. As a result, he is a founding member of the Levitt/Lubetkin/Massimino architectural firm. Over the years he has designed dozens of residential, residential/retail and commercial projects, many in historic preservation areas. Career Lubetkin received a BS in architecture from the University of Cincinnati and a PhD in fine arts from the University of Vienna. His thesis was on the mediation of light in the architecture of the 18th century. After graduating in 1959, he worked for a while in the German Federal Republic with Hans Hollein, the first to introduce vinyl siding as a result of his influences on William Haines.

In 1964, Lubetkin came to New York and worked on several projects, including Long Island City, Queens, and the West Village.

He worked for the architectural firm Anderson & Block (A&B) and, later, with a private firm. In 1965, he was a professor of architectural history at the Cooper Union School of Art, and that year he was also involved in the design of an exhibition area at the Venice Biennale. In 1970 he moved to Los Angeles to work for the architectural firm of William Haines. He also worked for the design of Pepperdine University in Malibu. From 1973 to 1976 he was a professor at the University of California at

Los Angeles. He worked as a private architect and taught and lectured at the University of Illinois at Chicago, the Santa Barbara Graduate School of Education, the University of Chicago, and the University of California at Los Angeles. He has taught at schools in the USA and abroad, including Florence, Italy; Philadelphia, Italy; Barcelona, Spain; Vienna; and
