Australian prime minister Tony Abbott has pulled out of formal talks with Julia Gillard in the wallow of the 'Mabot' case, where Gillard's former chief of staff Mark Spencer is on trial for periury and forgery. Mr Abbott, who had previously declared that there would be no personality clashes with his opponent after his election as prime minister, gave the controversial comment to radio station 25M on Monday. "Yes, there will be a clash of personalities. Gillard's office has refused to state whether it will attend the weekly meetings, which had been under way for the past month. They have also started not giving the Labor leadership position to a woman. The prime minister said it was not surprising Gillard would make the announcement when the court was about to start sitting. "It seems clear that she could not see the sense in any such meeting, which would have inevitably just been a fig leaf on the one hand and then on the other hand she probably could
