What's new in Tetradecagon:

of the Week! Hi Guys! Sorry I've been gone from the site for so long, and I've been busy living my dream life. My life hasn't really been this great for many years, not since the dawn of my musical career. I've been busily in the recording studio, putting pieces together over the past six months, and I think I'm finally ready to announce the finished product: Darkwood. Yes, the Star Trek: The Next Generation miniseries, that I've mentioned and discussed a couple of times before. I know we all want to see it, and I'm so ready to make that a reality. So Darkwood will be a 10 episode miniseries, with a J.J. Abrams co-produced soundtrack that will eventually be released in physical form for subscribers to the Star Trek motion picture franchise. The one thing left to announce is my involvement! I'm playing the Music Director/Sound Designer, and I do not go over schedule. I started working on Darkwood in late July, and from that point, I worked like hell. Keeping with my commitment to social media, I've also been having some fun with my Facebook Fan page and Twitter account. Today, I want to give you a little more detail about the music that I composed for Darkwood. I refer to the miniseries' theme song, so listen to it at left. There will also be the 2-disc soundtrack CD available to subscribers. It will be comprised of a main recording by the various composers of each episode, with cues and sections of that track edited together by me for the final version. The music will be available on the Star Trek online store once it's available. I don't know what video you've seen in the trailers, but it should look quite good in HD! There will be a story and content guide for moviegoers to read, and I will have a commentary track as well. For non-subscribers, moviegoers can still purchase tickets today for this show, but once the DVD comes out, subscribers should get it at no additional cost. After all, it's our jobs that allowed to do this sort of work, right? I'm really proud to be involved in such a beautiful piece of our beloved franchise, and I can't wait to share it with you. I think this is a bonus that you're all are waiting for, so without further ado, let's get to it. There are two ways fans

It is a free- roam and slow-paced game with a small number of songs and scenes with different levels. It will take about 30 to 40 minutes to beat the game. The story begins with a concert by Vigo that saves the soul from dead. As he fell into deep sleep, and came to know that the soul of interest has disappeared. As a result, he judged it and died. That's the beginning of the story. More than 100 Scenes of the story will be added after the game release. Comfortably free-roam on a small island town where we get to know Vigo who knows the music or the person we live with, like family and friends. Songs and stories with heartstrings are based on the author's experiences. It's up to you to which you want to listen. -----Space Time Tone This game was made to give you a refreshing experience as if you are listening to some good music. It's not a game that you should just play casually. (Before playing the game, please make sure you have the following in mind. Note: The importance of the progress will be addressed when there are playable version of the game) For the character version: Vigo is a mousy looking fellow with the color of his skin being varying shades of light and dark blue and his hair in various colors too. His whole soul can be judged from his face. And he has a robot companion. For the background: The weather in this game is random. There might be days where the sky is cloudless and no wind blows. And other days when the wind blows furiously and there are wispy clouds. For the music: This is not a game with just a few songs. The use of the game engine that makes a combination of the rhythm of music. (The reason of using the engine, was to keep the size of the game small) As mentioned above, there are more than 100 songs in the game. The number of songs increase gradually as the game progresses. While there are some songs that start off catchy and require you to follow them, some other songs are emotional and teary. You will never get tired of listening to them. (The short songs cannot be added after the stage has been cleared) ▼What's in the game?▼ 1.Main character First there is a mea and it tells the
