A police officer who was shot and killed in West Baltimore on Thursday was identified as Officer Sean Suiter, 37, an 18-year veteran of the force. City Commissioner Brandon Scott said the officer was shot while sitting in his patrol car late Thursday afternoon, less than a block from East Baltimore Street and North Amity Street, near the Lanvale housing project. "When they arrived on the scene, they found him on the side of the road with one person who was also shot," Mr. Scott said at a news conference in front of city hall. The killer, whom police said was a recently released prisoner named Brian Tanks, was arrested in the West Baltimore community of Sandtown after about two hours, on a parole violation charge, Mr. Scott said. "When they arrested him, he did have in his possession a handgun," he said. Asked about why the suspect was let out on parole, Mr. Scott said it appeared he was not supposed to have a gun. The gun, a 9-millimeter, was recovered from him, he said. A neighbor in the Lanvale public housing complex confirmed the shooting and said the victims were sitting in an unmarked patrol car. "I saw one [victim] being lowered into the back of a police vehicle," said the neighbor, who asked not to be named. "Another one was laying on the side of the road." A police official at the scene described Officer Suiter's condition as serious. He was flown by helicopter to the Maryland Shock Trauma Center in Baltimore for treatment, according to the official, who was not authorized to discuss the matter publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity. Police officers in uniform are being assigned to fill in for the officer while he is recuperating. Officer Suiter's next of kin were notified of his death, the police official said. The death of a police officer during the line of duty is a rare occurrence in Baltimore, where serious crime is at near historic lows. The fatal shooting of police Officer Stephen McDonald at a bus stop in Baltimore early Monday was the first time in two decades that a Baltimore police officer was killed in the line of duty.
