Prevalence of obesity in Swiss adolescents and its correlates. To gain insight into the weight status of adolescents in Switzerland, the prevalence of overweight and obesity was determined and then correlated with socio-demographic variables, parental obesity, screen viewing time, sedentary habits, sleep duration and physical activity. Analyses were based on cross-sectional data of 476 adolescents from the Swiss Youth Health Survey 2003-04. Body mass index and skinfold thickness were measured according to international protocols. At least one of the three skinfold thickness measurements or the BMI exceeded the 95(th) percentile. Prevalence estimates were calculated and associations were assessed using cross-tabulations, logistic regressions and a generalised linear model. Overweight was found in 16.1 % and obesity in 9.8 % of the adolescents. More than half of the participants were sufficiently active; only 6.5 % watched >2 hours of television and/or played video games daily. They were more likely to be thin compared to obese participants. Those who watched ≥ 2 hours of television and/or played video games daily were more likely to be obese. The prevalence of obesity among adolescents in Switzerland is lower than in the USA and Europe. Further, the accumulation of screen time seems to promote the development of obesity.Q: Create a new directory in my application bundle

I'm not going to ask what you're trying to do, and I'm also not going to respond. If I had any idea what that tag was for, I'd be inclined to help, but I'm starting to wonder if you're trolling us instead. A: It's to format the tags. For SO you can set it in your account from preferences (if you have one). But its not always ideal, if you ever want to read other posts use this format on the website and use the tags to quickly know what your looking for. A: The tag doesn't have any special meaning that I can see. If you are trying to use it for something, that's fine, but I don't see any point in doing it as the tags aren't going to be there for you. 'In-the-trunk' gastric bypass surgery in the UK: patient satisfaction and resource implications. The number of bariatric procedures performed in the UK appears to be escalating rapidly, but they are funded by the National Health Service through a national contract-based service. This analysis is the first to describe a trial of in-the-trunk gastric bypass in the UK. During the period July 2013-January 2014, patients who underwent the in-the-trunk gastric bypass procedure were identified through the National Bariatric Surgery Centre (NBSC) database. The NBSC is funded by the NHS, offers an in-the-trunk gastric bypass procedure via a short stay unit, and is part of the national contract-based bariatric service. A national questionnaire was administered at 3-month follow-up. Follow-up data were obtained for all patients. Between July 2013 and July 2014, 54 in-the-trunk gastric bypass procedures were performed. Mean (\pm SD) age was 40.2 (\pm 9.1) years, mean weight was 149.0 (\pm 28.8) kg, and mean BMI was 44.2 (\pm 6.2) kg/m². Mean preoperative length of stay was 1.2 days (range, 1-5), with an estimated overall hospital cost of approximately £8064. Patients were interviewed at a mean of 2.7 (\pm 1.0) months after the operation. At follow-up, 91% of patients felt that their operation had been successful, and 92% felt that it had been worthwhile; 94% felt that there
