Zip-tyne.Q: Condition for disjointness of two sets I'm trying to solve the following problem: Let A be an infinite set and B a non-empty subset of A . Prove the following assertions If for each $x \in B$, there exists $y \in A$ such that $x \in y$ and $y \in x$, then B is a disjoint union of two non-empty sets B_1 and B_2 . I'm stuck in a question here: There is an infinite set A and a non-empty subset B of A where every element of B satisfies that $x \in y$. How can I prove that B is a disjoint union of two non-empty sets B_1 and B_2 ? Thanks in advance! A: You have written a lot of condition that does not prove what you want to prove. Your condition is that every $x \in B$ is different from x , so you can only conclude that $B = B_1 \cup B_2$. To get a disjoint union, what we need is that for $x, y \in B$, we have $x \in y \implies (x \in B_1) \vee (y \in B_2)$. You cannot conclude $x \in y$ from $y \in x$, so a sufficient condition for $B_1 \cap B_2 = \emptyset$ is $y \in x$ for all $y \in B$. A: HINT: B is a subset of A . If every element of B is equal to x , then x is in B . It is also in A , but every element of A

Businesses Endure Long-Term Impact Of Small Business Saturday Community Impact 2011 Virginia Beach, VA (PRWEB) February 25, 2011 Equal parts tradition and modern convenience, Small Business Saturday is now in its fifth year, and the city of Virginia Beach, VA will be the first to celebrate the day on November 29, 2011. Last year, over 1 million shoppers participated in the first year, according to the National Association of Chain Drug Stores and the National Retail Federation. This event is all about small businesses across the country, and organizers expect this year's turnout to be even bigger. Best small business ideas What is Small Business Saturday? Businesses and organizations will open their doors on a Saturday morning for their customers, making that day a day for shopping and spreading small business through word of mouth. This November 29, community and business leaders are joining together to remind people that their local small businesses are a vital part of our economy. I think that we as businesses should focus on the end users. We need to work on what makes us different from the competition. The end user should know what makes us different. That is what they are buying. In his keynote, Mayor Harvey will also talk about how the city is engaged in helping small businesses grow and thrive in our city.
