Cracked AutoCAD With Keygen uses the topic in the section below for the sample drawing, and performs the actions described for it. Using the context menu for a topic in an AutoCAD drawing, you can perform a variety of actions, such as creating a cut line, a region, or a layer. Topic: Connect to Network share Purpose: Provide a method for data storage, backup, and archiving of a drawing. Operations: Load Drawing Background: This topic is intended for interactive use and not for batch processing. A user can place a drawing on an AutoCAD network. This drawing remains on the network and is loaded automatically when you log in. Note: You can view a drawing on an AutoCAD network using a viewer application, such as AutoCAD LT for Windows or Mac or AutoCAD Viewer for Linux. To place a drawing on a network In the Windows Control Panel Select Network and Internet Connections. Select the Local Area Network icon. Select Network and Sharing Center. Under Network, select Change Advanced Sharing Settings. Select the folder where the drawing should be placed. Select OK. When you place a drawing on a network, the drawing remains loaded on the network and is available to you in AutoCAD. For information about files stored on a network, see Network Files. To Place an AutoCAD Drawing on a Network On the command line, type netplw -d [path to the drawing]. If you want to place a drawing on a network that is visible to all users on the local network, do one of the following: If you want to place the drawing on a network that is visible only to you, select the user account or user group in which the drawing will be placed on the network. On the command line, type netplw -u [user name]. If you want to place the drawing on a network that is visible only to the current user, select this user account or user group on the Network Connections list. To Place a Drawing on a Network by Using Autodesk Data & Media Manager (DMM) In DMM, open the drawing you want to place on the network. Select the Netplw tab. Under AutoCAD Network, click Options and select Use Network. Click the
