CLUB...Q: MySql doesn't show
primary key's auto increment value
I have a database with a table called blogs in which the column blog_ID auto increments if the ID is not set by myself manually. Its code is: CREATE TABLE `blogs` ( `blog_ID` bigint(20) NOT NULL,
`blog` varchar(128) NOT NULL,
`post` text, PRIMARY KEY (`blog_ID`)); But whenever I insert
a new row using mysql workbench
it automatically generates a new id

---

for my table. If I set the id myself manually it works fine. Any ideas how can I solve this problem? A: You need to set the default value for ID: ALTER TABLE `blogs` MODIFY COLUMN `blog_ID`
bigint(20) NOT NULL DEFAULT '0';

Other options are

AUTO_INCREMENT, or an other column with default value.

Description of the habitat of the lost rainbow trout of Northern Australia (Oncorhynchus mykiss). The population of the lost rainbow trout (Oncorhynchus mykiss) from the Northern Territory, Australia, was recognized in the 1980s.

Although records of the fish are sparse, it is known that the species is distributed in seven South Australian rivers as well as in a few streams in the Northern Territory. To gain an insight into the ecology of this species, fish from the Lake

Victoria lakes and rivers were examined and the following three habitats were found; (i) aquatic habitats, such as pools and small water-courses, connected to nearby water bodies; (ii) rocky habitats in and around pools, connected to water bodies; and (iii) streams and small water courses, although no specimens were found in any of these habitats. The importance of each habitat type is discussed and implications for management are also considered. Tissue specificity of AZ 6d1f23a050
