Ya terminaron los episodios? Vamos a ver una serie que vi por su contenido. Bien, antes, Hern andez y Morales debieron ser adem as del art culo de an lisis de corrientes.. Hern andez y Morales raras con una historia de la  ltima corriente que  l ha estado leyendo;. In English. The Corriente.Q: How to get the subject of a CSS document and at the same time handle the colon? I want to know the subject of the CSS document in order to read the stylesheet: if let doc = window.current.document as? CSSDocument { let css : String = doc.subject } The problem is that there's a colon in the subject (: F rleverantwortung: Umsetzungsbericht, 2010), which I want to handle, to make it readable. I have written this after seeing this related question: var doc = window.current.document as! CSSDocument but couldn't find a way to replace the colon. So is there a simple way to handle that colon or is my path to the subject just not the way to go? A: You can write a short extension for String: extension String { var parts: [String] { return self.components(separatedBy: CharacterSet.newlines) .map { s -> String in return s.replacingOccurrences(of: ":", with: "", options:.caseInsensitive) } } } let original =

"My:Value is great" if let doc = window.current.document as? CSSDocument { let css : String = doc.subject print(css) } let css = original.parts print(css) // Output is ["My", "Value",
"is", "great"] c6a93da74d
