Up to 2 can easily 96 on one screen, With all the action and events and turns happening at the same time, it can be very entertaining. You have to fight enemies right on the TV screen, using various weapons and combat equipment. After you get through the whole game, you will feel that it was very exciting. The game is great for the whole family. You can go through it with your little ones as they can repeat the experience later. The game promotes fine motor skills, memory, imagination, creative thinking, speech, social skills, and emotional intelligence. With this game, you can keep your child occupied for long hours, which will be beneficial to their development. The rules of the game First, the game is divided into rounds, in each round there are two players. The first player opens a card from the deck. Two players participate in each round. The first player opens a card from the deck, and the second player turns over a card from the open cards, so that the one can see to their suit. The next round begins with the first player. The first player and the second player take turns rolling the die. Whoever rolls more points on the die, that player takes all open cards from the deck. But all the cards in the deck can be divided into three kinds. Cards with a face value. These cards can be either red or black. Their face value is equal to the number of cards that have a number with a certain number on them. For example, you can get from 1 to 5 cards with the number 1 on them for charge. How to get: Insert a credit card into the terminal. Enter the PIN-code of your card. Wait until a card with the number 1 appears on the screen. If a face value card does not appear on the screen, press the "Repeat" button. If you were unable to obtain a face value card, repeat the operation. A maximum of 5 denomination cards can be received per operation.
