According to ABC News, Obama plans to visit the country over the upcoming weekend to meet with Iranian President Hassan Rouhani. ADVERTISEMENT The exact timing of Obama's visit has not yet been released. Reports of Obama's upcoming visit come as tensions flare between the U.S. and Iran over the country's controversial nuclear program. Banks have frozen Iranian foreign currency accounts and top officials on both sides are threatening severe retaliation over Obama's recent decision to increase the number of U.S. troops in the Middle East. On Friday, Secretary of State John Kerry John Forbes KerryThe Memo: Warning signs flash for Trump on debates Divided country, divided church TV ads favored Biden 2-1 in past month MORE called on the Iranian government to release American prisoners. It comes on the heels of Obama's decision to postpone a nuclear deal between Iran and six other world powers, including the U.S. In a letter to Tehran on Thursday, Obama made the decision to delay the agreement's implementation, which was meant to take effect on July 1. The agreement was intended to place strict restrictions on the Iranian nuclear program and see them come into effect
