So I'm a little late ... but anyway, it seems like I have a new camera and since I'm a guy, most of the time is taken on seeing how it works, and now this Nikon has a new young rival for the film-dweller. Before downloading and using Adobe Photoshop Lightroom (five 2.0), I had to wait to the reviews of Lightroom 5.2 ... so here it is! The first impression is that Lightroom 5.2 seems to be a really speedy application, very pleasant and looks modern! And the interface is easier to understand than in version 4 in my opinion. However, how about the support for the hardware! On the other hand, I made a test, I opened a raw file created on my D5100, I took a window to decide but, I noticed that the RAW file was saved in TIFF format. I do not know exactly why Lightroom doesn't save my RAWs files as.DNG. I must have done something wrong and I am studying. Anyone have any ideas?

20. Share Filter with Others - You can now use filters with other people online via personal connections. It is an innovation and a big improvement over the old system that required you to upload the image to a server. This is the most user friendly system I have ever used. I hope to see the same thing later with a lot of online social platforms. My guess is it will not sound cool to constantly upload your image to a server and post it on Facebook. 21. It is not meant to replace layers but it works for selective mask, and since it is vector based there is no chance of losing images from these layers when you scale the image up.
