Field of the Invention This invention relates to a steering column apparatus adapted to support a steering column, more specifically to a steering column apparatus with which an abnormality in a steering wheel or a horn can be detected and an electric control system. 2. Description of the Related Art Generally, as disclosed in, for example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open (kokai) No. 3-188625, it is well known that, when an electric wire provided to a steering column for supplying electric power to a steering column supporting apparatus is short-circuited or short-circuited due to an accident, the steering wheel cannot be operated. Further, when the steering wheel is operated even though a short-circuit has occurred, abnormal electric power may be applied to a horn circuit and/or a horn can be actuated. Further, a device is proposed as a steering wheel operating apparatus which detects an abnormality of a steering wheel operating lever (including a horn) and an abnormality in an inner-lens visual field sensor. The device is constituted such that an IC card is mounted on a steering wheel operating lever and a control circuit calculates a difference between the steering wheel operating lever and the IC card and when a difference between two pieces of data becomes greater than or equal to a predetermined value, an alarm lamp or the like is actuated. Further, another device is proposed in which an abnormality in the steering wheel or the horn is detected from the condition of the steering wheel operating lever, the steering wheel being operated. The device is constituted such that an IC card is attached to the steering wheel operating lever and a plurality of switches are provided for detecting mechanical rotation and/or
